These systematic tools force us to identify and define the problem, objectively evaluate all alternative solutions, develop a process to realize the desired result, implement that process to effect change and then to verify and test the results. This book applies this analytical process to human feelings and relationships in an easily understood, heartwarming, and enjoyable way. Identifying and working on the root problem instead of symptoms; using tools from all areas of expertise including science, psychology, and religion; and then combining these resources with engineering, results-driven precision yields verifiable solutions to the major contentions in lifeEja system that any person can use to experience happiness and enjoy relationships beyond their wildest dreams.
